

Role of our RDSTF and Health Care Coalitions in Management of Large Scale Disasters in Miami-Dade County/South Florida

Rebecca M. Creighton, RN, BSN, MS HSA

Director of Education and Professional Development
Delray Medical Center
Delray Beach

Rebecca Creighton is currently the Director of Education and Professional Development for Delray Medical Center. She graduated from the University of Southern Maine in 1996 with a Bachelors Degree in Nursing Science and from Barry University in 2007 with a Masters in Science in Health Services Administration. Over the past 20 years, she has served in multiple levels of leadership in both small and large hospitals. Leadership roles held include Director of Telemetry, Director of Emergency Services and the current role as Director of Education. Additionally, the bulk of her front line clinical experience has been emergency room based, caring for patients across the age continuum from newborns to the elderly including pediatric and adult Trauma.

Rebecca has been involved in Emergency Preparedness at the hospital level for approximately 15 years and has assumed responsibility for the education and preparedness of the Emergency Response team for the past 10 years. Rebecca traveled to the Center for Domestic Preparedness NOBLE training facility in Anniston, Alabama in 2009 and 2010 for training in Hospital Emergency Response teams. Rebecca has been involved with the Healthcare Emergency Response Coalition since 2005 and currently sits as Immediate Past Chair. Rebecca is also the Co-Chair for the Southeast Regional Domestic Security Task Force Health and Medical Functional Workgroup. She is also a member of the Medical Reserve Corps in Palm Beach County.

Miracles
made daily.

Jackson
MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

